Noah Wardrip-Fruin is professor in the department of computer science at the University of California, Santa Cruz. He is the coeditor of four collections published by the MIT Press: with Nick Montfort, The New Media Reader (2003); with Pat Harrigan, First Person: New Media as Story, Performance, and Game (2004); Second Person: Role-Playing and Story in Games and Playable Media (2007), and Third Person: Role-Playing and Story in Games and Playable Media (2007). Research shows self-reported heavy Facebook users make impaired decisions, like drug addicts, on a classic test of maximizing rewards — researchers at Michigan State University are exploring the idea that there's more to "social media addiction" than casual joking about being too online might suggest. Face is a form of theatrical make-up used predominantly by non-black performers to represent a caricature of a black person. The practice gained popularity during the 19th century and contributed to the spread of racial stereotypes such as the "happy-go-lucky darky on the plantation" or the "dandified coon". By the middle of the century, blackface minstrel shows had become a distinctive feature of fastway movers NYC, New Jersey, Boston & Miami, we understand that every move is unique.
